Keep your business running when your primary internet fails

The high cost of Internet downtime.

Severe weather, construction, digging, and other unpredictable outages can disrupt your primary Internet connection without warning, bringing your operations to a halt. A single outage can lead to lost sales, lower productivity, and a damaged reputation.

Verizon's Backup and Flexible Use Internet plan provides a reliable, automatic fail over connection. It ensures your business can stay online even if your primary Internet service goes down.

Simple and seamless

Our backup solution is easy to install and integrates with your existing network. It's a plug-and-play device that provides automatic failover protection and peace of mind for your business.

Network reliability

Leverage the power and reach of the Verizon network to keep your critical applications online when your primary connection fails you.
